Exploring History | Ancient Monuments & Landmarks

Thermae is the ancient name of Loutraki derived from goddess "Thermia Artemis", the protector goddess of therapeutic mineral waters.

The famous Corinth Canal is the absolute landmark of our Municipality which separates the Peloponnese from mainland Greece and connects the Gulf of Corinth with the Saronic Gulf. The Corinth Canal, though only completed in the late 19th century, was an idea and dream that's dates back over 2000 thousand years. Several rulers in antiquity dreamed of digging a cutting through the Isthmus. The first to propose such an undertaking was the tyrant Periander in the 7th century BC. However the technical capabilities in ancient times made his idea impossible to implement. Instead, he developed the "Diolkos", which served the purpose of carrying ships in a wheeled vehicle and transferred them from one side to the other.

The remnants of the Ancient Diolkos still remain intact in the area.

The Heraion of Perachora was a sanctuary dedicated to the goddess Hera, situated in a small cove of the Corinthian gulf at the end of the Perachora peninsula. In addition to a temple of Hera which is of unusual construction, the remains of a number of other structures have also been found, including a L-shaped stoa, a large cistern, dining rooms, and a second potential temple remnants.

Historical revelations continue in Ag. Theodoroi in the ruins of Ancient Krommyon, associated in mythology with Theseus, who killed Phaea, the monstrous wild sow, there on his way from Troezen to Athens.

Loutraki Thermal Spa

Revitalizing Wellness | Natural Thermal Spa & Balneology

The water derived from the Loutraki natural thermal springs was characterized as “The Water of Life” since antiquity. The geothermal springs derive from many faults of the coastal area in a 750 -m-wide zone. The natural spring hot waters, at the bottom of Mount Geraneia, are discharged from a great mineral depth. During its journey towards the surface, the pure spring water is being filtered through porous layers and it is so greatly enriched with precious trace elements, salts and minerals, that its healing properties make it a very strong health ally.

The modern Loutraki Thermal Spa is an impressive establishment where visitors enjoy balneology, spa treatments and wellness sessions in a luxurious environment.

The facilities of Loutraki Thermal Spa include:

- ▶ 2 indoor heated swimming pools with waterfalls and jet hydro massaging (underwater massage) 201m² and 40m² respectively
- ▶ 1 indoor cool water swimming pool 20m² for post-traumatic rehabilitation
- ▶ 1 outdoor swimming pool with a mushroom shaped waterfall and waterfalls for hydro massage 161m²
- ▶ 2 individual cabins with hydrotherapy bathtubs and the bathtub Caracalla with multiple sprinklers
- ▶ 3 double cabins with hydrotherapy bathtubs
- ▶ 2 Sauna and 2 Steam Bath / Hamam
- ▶ Private massage cabins, Beauty and Aesthetics Halls
- ▶ 2 facilities for silt therapy
- ▶ Fitness Club and Yoga Room
- ▶ Cafeteria and Specious reception and rest areas
- ▶ Easy access for the disabled
